It was the parents experience that they received less encouraging feedback about their children than the teachers believed that the had given. Digital messages were consider to be more understandable by parents.

SUGGESTING IDEAS

Social media is neither a boon nor a bane by itself, it is totally depends on how we use it. We must maintain a balance between our productive and unproductive activities.

Excess use of anything is harmful and the same thing applies to social media too.

CONCLUSION

Social media has both advantage and disadvantage. It depends on how they use it. It is the most powerful tool today. It has revolutionized our lives You Tubers who post funny things in social media or their video links in social media are creating a higher chance of these videos going viral. These videos are no longer only in the YouTube platform, but in multiple social media feeds. It is also much easier for someone to like a video in Face book or between tweets in twitter than doing it in YouTube, and thus more people get to see the YouTube content. It is like a chain reaction, it expands and expands in a very quick way making their YouTube have a lot of views in a matter of minutes. On the other hand, a you tuber that produces very good content but refuses to use social media, will only be able to reach the loyal audience he has, the audience that his name on the YouTube search box and check to see if he uploaded a video, instead of having instance as notification. We can firmly conclude that social media has a very strong impact on YouTube, since it makes the producer content reach more people, it facilitates the incorporation of new subscribers to a channel and it makes it seem more local or familiar.

The ability of writing a tweet to YouTube star and maybe have a response is a great way of interaction between communicator and receiver. The entire interview said that they want to decrease how much they use social media and their phone in general but we failed to ask them if they would. With the knowledge of both positive and negative affects it would be interesting to see if they would and give good insight into how addicted our generation using social media networks to find and share content and media social media to grow and nurture an invaluable on social networks using social media to build a community in your school and professional network. Social media is also useful for the producer since it acts as a way to receive feedback if a lot of people start complaining about how he plays, or the producer will have no way of not reading it, and hopefully fixing whatever problem in case there was one. In conclusion, YouTube is a very strong growing platform creating lots of opportunities for entrepreneurs and motivated people. The best way to succeed at it, apart from creating good video content, is knowing what people like and knowing how to those people, for which of course you will need a mastery of social media. Social media changed our life so much.

Our life became more convenient because social media is a very useful tool for us 21st century, it could help us to improve our life. However, we have to aware of how we use them. If we could use the social media smartly, having social media will become a good change for us. YouTube has become an important “visual journalism” platform, both for conventionally produced content from established news organizations and for citizen eyewitness contributions. Certain independent or alternative news organizations have established YouTube channels that reach a wider audience than traditional broadcast television. YouTube has promoted democracy through free expression of individual political views, for example enabling certain to censor the website. YouTube has affected conventional politics, becoming even more important than direct mail in political campaigning, with politicians and governments using the website to directly engage citizens and promote policies. However, its recommendation algorithm has been shown to recommend extremist content, especially far-right and conspiracy, leading to claims that YouTube has been used as a tool for political. Social media is a boon for human civilization because it has brought the whole world individuals can share their views and ideas and such interactions are beneficial for the people as it helps in increasing social skills. In today’s world, technology has made our life easier because with the help of technology we can learn new things and meet new people all over the world.

While mobile phones invention was done for empowering us, but it has now started dominating us. Smart phones enable us to engage in gaming, studying and online shopping. It also allows us to watch movies, click pictures, listen to music, surf the internet and enjoy various other activities. Due to high utility it results can be very harmful for us. Mobile addiction can become the main cause many serious problems, such as headaches, weakening of eyesight, sleepiness, depression, social isolation, stress, aggressive behaviour, financial problems and less professional development. They simply scroll through the app to check the information they are online and engage in such other useless activities on their mobile phones. Social media is an important tool put into the hands of an ordinary person. He or she can express views without going to conventional means of mass communication like TV, radio, etc. Of all the creatures, only human beings have the faculty of expressing themselves through language, written or spoken. It is for this purpose, freedom of speech is the most basic rights protected in all democratic setup. But at the same time, it should not eat away other rights through the spread of misinformation. A regulation is necessary so that it is put to good use, not the bad. Social media has brought the world so close that political and geographical boundaries are crumbling. Time may come when the more people communication is, the more is the strengthening of relationships. This is the basic principle of the political concept of nation- building.
